Fall Resource Fairs: Great Success!

Mon Valley Providers Council

In September, the Human Services Center Corporation (HSCC) partnered with Community College of Allegheny County (CCAC) to host two resource fairs at South Campus in West Mifflin. And in October, HSCC hosted its 6th Annual Community Resource Fair in Turtle Creek. These three fairs connected residents with available community resources. Over 200 people attended these fall events!

CCAC South hosted two of the fairs on September 13th and 14th. Attendees received important information in areas such as mental health, health insurance, disability rights, healthy recipes, and career services. Attendees also received snacks as well as got a chance to enter for several drawings for gift cards and prizes.

HSCC's 6th Annual Community Resource Fair was held on October 20th. Everyone in attendance received a ticket for free ice cream. The event also raffled off many prizes such as various gift attended the event. Services in attendance included medical screenings, health insurance, education, job training, housing programs, services for seniors, and food assistance. The event was coordinated with Lights on After School to celebrate out of school programming.

Thirty-four organizations

The Communicator is the official newsletter of the Mon Valley Providers Council (MVPC), an alliance of over 70 human service agencies serving more than 37 communities in the Mon Valley of Allegheny County. Parenting Can Be Hard Work!

Healthy Families Allegheny - ACHD

Any new parent will likely tell you that parenting is the most rewarding, while also the most difficult, thing they have ever done. Especially during the first years of a child's life, parents play the most active and influential role in their baby's healthy growth and development. Parenting is difficult even in the best of circumstances, and when coupled with other stressful life events, it becomes even more challenging. During these times, support from others is critical.

Home visiting has been demonstrated to be an effective method of supporting families. These voluntary programs tailor services to meet the needs of individual families. While home visiting programs vary in goals and content of services, in general, they combine parenting and health care education, child abuse prevention, and early intervention and education services for young children and their families. Healthy Families Allegheny is one of three home visiting programs offered by the Allegheny County Health Department, Maternal and Child Health Services division.

Healthy Families Allegheny, serves families living in the Mon Valley communities of Braddock, Clairton, McKeesport and Homestead. The other two programs are Nurse Family Partnership and Title V Home Visiting. Home visits are provided by nurses and paraprofessionals for women who are pregnant, new parents, or families who have children up to the age of three years old. Services include health education, prenatal and child development screenings, family support and community referrals, breastfeeding support and smoking cessation support.

Services are free and voluntary, and the programs utilize a language translation service to better serve non-English speaking families in the region. Those interested in referring families for home visiting services or wanting services themselves can call 1-866-730-2368 to be connected with those programs provided by the Maternal Child Health Services division or the many others that exist across the county. Information about ACHD programs can also be found at www.achd.net/childhth or by calling 412-247-7950.

Human Services Center

Program for High School Seniors

Do you have a teen that will be a senior next school year? Do you want your teen to have a set plan for after graduation to move on to a successful life after high school? Then the Human Services Center Corporation's Emerging Leaders Program (ELP) may be a perfect fit!

ELP is a workforce development and college readiness program for seniors attending East Allegheny, McKeesport Area, Penn Hills, West Mifflin Area, and Woodland Hills High Schools that is incorporated into the students' school day. Participants attend a daily or weekly session (depending on the school) during the school day where they are instructed in a curriculum specifically created for seniors to prepare them for success after high school.

A variety of professionals present to the class throughout the year on their career fields and personal development and students are matched to job shadowing opportunities. Participants work one-on-one with a staff person regularly to receive highly individualized attention and support in their pursuit of their goals. They create goal plans and refer to the plans throughout the year to stay on track. Plus, participants will have the chance to earn money periodically based on participation and goal completion throughout the school year and post-graduation.

Help Getting Work

Mon Valley Initiative

Looking for work isn't easy. Most of us have had to look for a job at one time or another. We all know how difficult it can be.

Now, imagine that you're looking for a job after a divorce, or a bankruptcy. Your job search is happening at the most stressful time in your life. Or, imagine that you were arrested. You've done your sentence and now you're out of jail. You're worried that your job application will go right into the trash.

These situations have really happened to clients of Mon Valley Initiative, located in Homestead, a non-profit agency that helps people learn how to use a computer, create a resume and apply for work.

Tracey Reaves, director of workforce development, says that in the past 12 months, 316 people came to MVI for help finding a job. More than 200 of those people now have good jobs. The help is free.

Some of the clients had criminal records or were in recovery from drug or alcohol addiction. Other people never needed a resume before, or they never had to fill out a job application. Maybe they were taking care of their children, or a sick relative. Now, for whatever reason, they need to find a job, and don't know how to start.

Reaves says, "We are willing to help anyone who comes to us and does the work that we need them to do."

MVI staff help people to practice for a job interview or they help people develop "soft skills" — for example, learning how to have a positive attitude and how to dress appropriately at work.

For more information about workforce development, including classes and events, call 412-464-4000.
